PRESSURE ULCER MANAGEMENT: ADDRESSING THE EXTRINSIC RISKS...

This interactive presentation will discuss the goals of a proper seating system and how it can lesson a client's risk for pressure ulcer formation. The intrinsic and extrinsic risk factors commonly associated with pressure ulcers will be discussed along with strategies to minimize the risks. Clinical practice guidelines for pressure ulcer prevention and treatment will also be reviewed. - Tricia Henley, MPT ATP

TRICIA HENLEY, MPT, ATP

Ms. Henley is currently the Clinical Applications Manager for The ROHO Group. She specialized in neuro rehabilitation at Baylor Institute for Rehabilitation in Dallas, Texas. While working at Baylor Institute for Rehabilitation she gained extensive knowledge in the prescription and training of custom wheelchairs and seating. She also worked as the outpatient wheelchair seating clinic specialist. Now with The ROHO Group, Ms. Henley is presenting CEU programs to therapists and DME providers nationally regarding seating, positioning and pressure imaging. She is an active member of the APTA, RESNA and Clinician's Task Force.

DON'T JUST SIT THERE...

This interactive presentation will discuss why children need frequent position changes and how movement benefits their cognitive and physical development. The problems associated with Metabolic Syndrome and how movement can help maintain overall health into adulthood will be reviewed. Information on writing successful letters of medical necessity for assistive technology will also be presented. - Peter Wankelman, ATP

PETER WANKELMAN, ATP

Mr. Wankelman is the Western Regional Sales Manager for EasyStand products at Altimate Medical, Inc. He has more than fifteen years experience with standing devices and has worked in the rehabilitation technology industry for over twenty years. He has presented in-services to key therapists in every major pediatric and adult rehabilitation facility nationwide. He has been an attendee and/or presenter at conferences such as the International Seating Symposium, Medtrade, RESNA, and the APTA. He has been the featured speaker at numerous workshops on standing around the country and has presented Altimate Medical's "Standing 101" over 150 times to clinicians and suppliers in six different countries.
